CENTER FOR BLACK MUSIC RESEARCH COLLECTION

The Alton A. Adams, Sr. Collection, 1915-1985

EXTENT

20 boxes + 3 volumes, 10 linear feet

COLLECTION SUMMARY

The personal papers of Alton Augustus Adams, Sr. reflect his activities as a bandmaster in the U.S. Navy (1917–1934 and 1942–1947), as a press correspondent (1949–circa 1968), as a member and president of the Hotel Association of the Virgin Islands (1952–1970), and as a lifelong educator, civic leader, author, and local historian. They also contain manuscripts of his music compositions, band parts, and music by other composers performed by his band or inscribed to him.

PROCESSING INFORMATION

The Adams collection was received in several installments. Preliminary sorting of the materials took place in St. Thomas; the music materials and autobiographical materials were then hand-carried to the mainland. The remainder of the materials were shipped.

Most of the collection had very little in the way of original order to maintain. The correspondence was removed from the three-ring notebooks with plastic sleeves in which it was arranged more-or-less chronologically, and filed chronologically in acid-free folders. Other letters found in the files were interfiled. The autobiography, which was in one large folder, was refoldered by chapter. Other materials were loose in file cabinets in the office of Alton A. Adams, Jr. in St. Thomas. They were arranged in series that reflected Adams's many activities. Single pages and fragments that could not be matched up with other materials are boxed together.

The music was also in some disarray, though it was possible to put most of it in order using cues such as type of paper and ink, key signatures, and time signatures, to reunite scattered pages. The small and fragile band parts, slightly larger than an index card, presented special problems in this respect. Luckily most were labeled with the title of the piece. The music scores, many of them quite fragile, are stored flat in print boxes, and the band parts, many also fragile after years of use, are placed upright in folders because of their small size.

The collection was processed by and a finding aid created by Suzanne Flandreau in 2000.

BIOGRAPHICAL NOTE

Alton Augustus Adams Sr. was born in St. Thomas, Virgin Islands in 1889 and died there in 1987. He studied music by correspondence, earning a Bachelor of Music degree, and founded the St. Thomas Juvenile Band in 1910. When the United States assumed territorial administration of the Virgin Islands from Denmark in 1917, the band was inducted into the U.S.

Navy as a goodwill gesture. Adams made a name for himself as the first black bandmaster in the U.S. Navy and as a writer on band-related topics.

Adams continued to conduct bands for the U.S. Navy through World War II. In 1942 in Guantánamo, Cuba, he led a Navy band that was the first racially integrated band in the U.S. armed forces. Adams was also a composer; his published compositions include three marches: "The Governor's Own," "The Spirit of the U.S. Navy," and "The Virgin Islands March," which became the "national anthem" of the U.S. Virgin Islands.

In addition to conducting and composing, Adams was a journalist, writer, radio broadcaster, and educator, and was considered an important person in St. Thomas, its "First Citizen." He played a strong civic role through the various organizations with which he was associated. From 1918 to 1931 he supervised the music programs in the public schools of the Virgin Islands. After his retirement from the Navy in 1947, Adams worked as a press correspondent for several media organizations, produced a radio program featuring classical music, and was active for many years in the tourism industry, including running his own guest house in St. Thomas. Notably, he was a founding member of the Hotel Association of the Virgin Islands, and served as its president from 1952 to 1970.

SCOPE & CONTENT/COLLECTION DESCRIPTION

The personal papers of Alton Augustus Adams, Sr. reflect his activities as a bandmaster in the U.S. Navy, as a press correspondent, as a member and president of the Hotel Association of the Virgin Islands, and as a lifelong educator, civic leader, author, and local historian. They also contain manuscripts of his music compositions, band parts, and music by other composers performed by his band or inscribed to him. In his extensive correspondence, there are letters from major American bandmasters, including John Philip Sousa and Edwin Franko Goldman, and correspondence with Richard Franko Goldman, whose band often performed Adams's marches. The collection consists of documents, including autobiographical and biographical materials, correspondence, speeches and writings, scrapbooks, and music manuscripts of many of his compositions as well as manuscript and printed music by other composers.

In 1924, the Navy Band of the Virgin Islands made a successful tour of the eastern U.S. mainland and a scrapbook in collection records the events of that tour and the overwhelmingly favorable public reaction. The band continued to be a showpiece in the region into the 1930s.

Many of Adams's musical compositions were destroyed in a fire in 1933, but a number of scores and parts survive, including his three published marches and other concert pieces, either scored for piano, band, or orchestra.

The correspondence of Alton A. Adams, originally preserved in three loose-leaf letterbooks as well as left loose in his files, dates from 1915 to 1985. Incoming correspondence includes letters relating to his military career, letters from several musicians and composers, including Eva Jessye, Clarence Cameron White, Philippa Duke Schuyler, and William L. Dawson, and letters from other important figures, among them Claude Barnett, George Schuyler, and Carter G. Woodson. Several governors of the Virgin Islands are also represented. Many other letters are from individuals who were guests at his guesthouse. A few carbons of Adams's outgoing letters also survive.

Records of the Hotel Association of the Virgin Islands, including correspondence, minutes and memos are found within the collection. These are present especially for its early years, when the hotelkeepers successfully fought a 2% hotel tax and attempted to develop a vocational training system for hotel workers.

During the 1950s and 1960s, Adams was a journalist and correspondent. His employers included the Pittsburgh Courier, the Associated Negro Press, and the Associated Press. His stories and press wires with correspondence concerning them are in Series III. Unfortunately, many are undated, but the stories are arranged chronologically when possible. Adams was also a member of the Virgin Islands Press Association, and limited records from the early years of that organization.

For a number of years, Alton Adams hosted a radio broadcast sponsored by the Hotel Association. His radio scripts, in the form of undated handwritten drafts are in the collection. Adams also gave speeches over the radio and in person, wrote articles in the local newspaper, and wrote on musical subjects for a larger audience. Many of these speeches and writings survive in typescript form and can be found in the collection. Unfortunately, records of his early contributions to band literature, including regular articles for Jacob's Band Monthly and other publications, were lost when his house burned in 1933. Assignments for a writing course he took in 1953–1954, apparently when he was contemplating becoming a press correspondent, are also present. There is also a completed but unpublished typescript on arranging music for band.

Information about Adams's other musical activities, including performances of his marches by the Goldman Band, and the adoption of his "Virgin Islands March" as the national song of the U.S. Virgin Islands in 1963 is also present. There are several folders of materials relating to composer/performer Philippa Duke Schuyler, who gave several performances in St. Thomas.

An interesting and important part of the papers is Adams's autobiography, which he left in semi-finished form and in many versions and both the typescript of the autobiography and other fragmentary versions and biographical materials are in the collection. These have been edited by Mark Clague and published in the CBMR's Music of the African Diaspora series as The Memoirs of Alton Augustus Adams, Sr.: First Black Bandmaster of the United States Navy (Berkeley: University of California Press, 2008).

SERIES VII , Box 2: Radio Scripts

Note: These are handwritten introductions to a radio program hosted by Adams that featured classical music. They are all untitled and undated. They are arranged alphabetically by featured composer, with programs featuring specific periods or types of music, or multiple composers, at the end of the series.

Box 3: Navy Band Scrapbook 1924

Note: This scrapbook is devoted to the band's tour of the Eastern United States in 1924. The original pages of the scrapbook had been separated and placed in plastic covers in a three-ring notebook. The pages were removed from the plastic covers, foldered, and boxed. The scrapbook is roughly chronological; however, most of the clippings are undated, and in many cases the publications are not identified.
