BIOGRAPHICAL NOTE

Doug Lofstrom is a bassist and composer born in Chicago who has been composing since the 1960s. His scores reflect theater, dance, film, and symphonic music. In the 1980s, he served as musical director of the Chicago Free Street Theatre and in the 1990s, he served as composer-in-residence for the Metropolis Symphony Orchestra. In 1989, in collaboration with librettist Al Day, the opera, Two Soldiers, was composed, with its premiere produced by Free Street Theater at the University of Illinois, Chicago. More recently, he composed works for Natya Dance Theatre, Tales and Scales music-telling group and had his pieces performed by the St. Louis, Atlanta, and Oregon Symphony Orchestra, and commissioned works for the New Philharmonic Orchestra. He formed The New Quartet in 2001, a chamber ensemble performing his original music and arrangements, and Trillium, a group performing Celtic, folk, ragtime, bluegrass, and Dixieland music. He is on the Music faculty at Columbia College Chicago, where he founded the New Music Ensemble in 2000,
