

10-25-1887

The Voice of the Phi Sigma -- 1887 -- Vol. 09, No. 05

Phi Sigma

Follow this and additional works at: http://digitalcommons.colum.edu/phisigma\_voice

 Part of the Social History Commons

---

Recommended Citation

Phi Sigma, "The Voice of the Phi Sigma -- 1887 -- Vol. 09, No. 05" (1887). The Voice of the Phi Sigma. 50.
http://digitalcommons.colum.edu/phisigma\_voice/50

This Book is brought to you for free and open access by the Phi Sigma Collection at Digital Commons @ Columbia College Chicago. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Voice of the Phi Sigma by an authorized administrator of Digital Commons @ Columbia College Chicago.

The Voice

Vol. IX No. 5.

Editors.

Mr. Fanning.

Miss Whittlesey.

Miss Homer.

The Voice.

Phi Sigma Class.

October 25th. 1887.

Index

to

No. 5, Vol. IX.

	Page.
Editorial-----	1.
Reading (Editorial)-----	3.
Influence of Books on Character,----- Miss Whittlesey	9.
Private Libraries,----- Miss Homer	12.
Novel Reading,----- Mr. Fanning.	29.
Newspaper Reading,----- Miss Whittlesey.	34.
Letter from a Denver Newspaper----- Miss Homer.	37.

---

---

1.

In order that a literary society such as ours is should be successfully carried on, it is necessary that each member should feel a personal responsibility resting upon him or her to attend the meetings from month to month.

In a society with the membership ranging from seventy five to a hundred the absence of three or four would hardly be noticed, but in ours, with the extreme limit of membership at twenty four, the absence of any one member is noticed & when three or four are absent the meeting decidedly feels it.

The wonderful success & long life of the Phi Sigma have been attained through, more than any other one thing, from the fact, that the individual members felt a deep interest & showed it by regular attendance & a strict regard for the duties devolving upon them.

At the present time, there is much concern felt for the continued welfare of our beloved Class, for the reason that some of our members do not feel that interest which they should. Showing it by making no calculations in the matter of engagements, as to the evenings on <sup>which the</sup> meetings